

3 Things Every Homeowner Must Know After Experiencing A Hailstorm

- Not all damage can be seen from the ground.

Depending on the height, size, and shape of the roof and/or the size and location of the damage, it is possible that your roof may have been damaged in ways that cannot be seen from the ground. Don't risk it. Get your roof checked with Level 1 Construction.

- Home policies are based on ZIP codes, not individual claim histories.

Unlike with auto insurance, not filing a claim for damage to your house will not keep your insurance rate low. Don't try to live with a storm-damaged house. Make that claim and get your roof replaced. If your claim has been rejected before, our contractors can help with the process.

- Not all roof replacement companies are the same.

Level 1 Construction is a general contractor, meaning that we inspect the entire property and work directly with the insurance company to restore your home to a better state than what it was before. Many roofing companies show up just after the storm, but don't stay to finish the work. Level 1 Construction is properly licensed and insured, has years of previous work, has an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau, and will never charge you before any work is done.
