

Attention Homeowner!

What Every Homeowner Must Know After Experiencing a Hailstorm

Don't Wait for the Next Storm!

Your roof may be damaged and you may not know it! Strong winds and hail may have caused damage that cannot be seen from the ground. Don't wait until the next storm to find out your roof sustained damage.

But My Roof Looks OK

Home insurance policies are based on ZIP codes. Did all your neighbors get a new roof? If so, your rate will go up, regardless of whether you get a new roof. But you can't wait forever. Most insurance companies allow one year from the date of the storm to file a claim. So if you've put off filing a claim to keep your insurance rates down, you need to do it now. If you tried to file, but your insurance company rejected your claim, Level 1 Construction can help. We will inspect your home and property for no cost and, if damage is found, we will help you with your claim process.

Don't Trust Anyone

Level 1 Construction is a general contractor, not a roofing company. General contractors inspect the entire property and work directly with the insurance company to restore your home to a better state than what it was before. Many roofing companies show up just after the storm, only to not finish the work. Level 1 Construction is properly licensed and insured, has years of previous work, and is rated A+ with the Better Business Bureau. Last, but not least, Level 1 Construction will never charge you before any work is done. Never make any payments to a roofer or contractor before any work is done, and do not make a final payment until all work is completed to your satisfaction.
